WORLD SCIENCE FESTIVAL BRISBANE

Returning to captivate inquisitive minds in March

Innovation via the sciences are the future. Institutionalized in our schools' STEM and STEAM programs - that the employment of our children will be largely science and tech based cannot be denied.

But let's not take the fun out of it.

Returning in March this year, the incredibly fun for all, super-charged celebration of science and arts, the World Science Festival Brisbane returns for its third instalment.

The free Street Science! event at South Bank is a lot of fun for our youngest minds and families but it's the ticketed events at this year's WSFB that will really captivate, when some of the world's greatest scientific minds and thought leaders descend on Brisbane March 21- 25.

This year, the theme is 'humanity' and will see experts from across the globe delve into what makes us human, how humanity has advanced, and how science is working to ensure we live better for longer.

The World Science Festival Brisbane began in 2016, it's a world-class event fresh from New York, that takes science out of laboratories and onto the streets.

The wildly popular turtle Hatchery returns. Visitors will be able to experience a rare opportunity to witness 58 loggerhead (meticulously incubated at exactly 29.9 degrees) so their hatchlings will be timed to emerge over the five days of the World Science Festival Brisbane. The Hatchery is part of the world-renowned Queensland Turtle Conservation project.

There will be two days of free Street Science! activities, 24-25 March 2018 at South Bank's Cultural Forecourt, from 10am - 4pm. In addition, a lens will be taken to the 'cool jobs' of science, and in a timely nod to the Commonwealth Games, an expert panel will discuss the role of science in the ongoing quest for sporting greatness.

As well as transforming the South Bank Cultural Precinct the festivities will travel to regional centres throughout the month, including Chinchilla, Gladstone, Toowoomba, Townsville, and, for the first time, Ipswich.

For more information and details on the Brisbane and regional programs, visit worldsciencefestival.com.au

Who is Hank and What Happened?

Hank is a Neo Mastiff pup owned by a hard-working family, who have had him since he was a young 3 month pup. This breed is known to be a loyal, gentle giant though as juveniles they are often clumsy and goofy and take some time to learn how to manage their size. The affable Disney characters of "Goofy" or "Pluto" often come to mind, when thinking of this type of breed.

Hank is very loved. He went everywhere with his family, has been around kids his whole life and loved playing with other dogs and the neighbourhood kids too. He got a commendation certificate for good behaviour at dog-school. He had never been impounded, or caused a problem in his community.

Hank was involved in an incident where a local child was injured in October 2016. The incident occurred with a number of witnesses present at a neighbourhood gathering. Hank had been playing with some other dogs present, having a good time. When a local little girl asked to pat Hank, his owner agreed and kept Hank beside her whilst she did. The brief moment of contact where Hank appeared to nudge the child was not observed by any witnesses and nobody realised anything was amiss until the child started crying. The contact did cause injury and the child required stitches and surgery due to the location and nature of the injury to her cheek, being a single wound with a single puncture. There was no malice or aggression observed and all witnesses agreed – as did the child's mother – it was simply an unfortunate accident. Moreton Bay Regional Council were obliged to investigate given a minor and a dog was involved in an incident. Following the accident, the child continued to visit Hank's home to play even as early as one week after the accident. Life largely continued on happily for Hank, his family and a tight knit neighbourhood. Moreton Bay Regional Council proceeded to declare Hank a dangerous dog ("DD") under Qld's Animal Management (Cats and Dogs Act) 2008, which meant he was allowed to stay with his family like a regular pet dog but now with some additional conditions. With all the evidence, medical records and photos, Moreton Bay Regional Council deemed it not appropriate to pursue Hank's destruction. Though Hank had never been involved in an incident before or had caused previous concern, Council did insist on the condition he would need to wear a muzzle when in public as a precaution. Despite two internal review processes at the request of Hank's family to appeal the declaration, which is a standard option available in such a circumstance, Moreton Bay Regional Council upheld their decision at appeals and again reaffirmed his declaration without destruction. Hank's family did cooperate with his conditions, investing significant time and money to comply with all statutory conditions that came with the declaration, including to have him wear a muzzle when in public. Other than a seemingly minor fall out between the children in the weeks after, it still came as a shock when it was later revealed that in the new year the mother of the child approached local Councillors and the Mayor requesting Hank to be removed from the street.

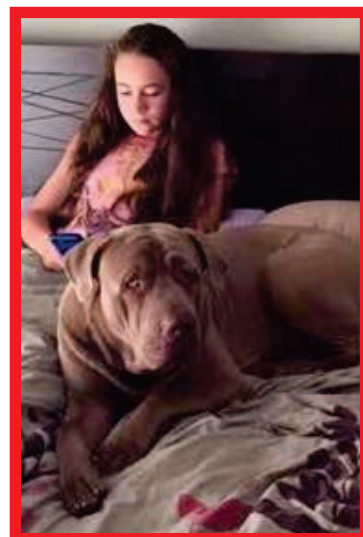

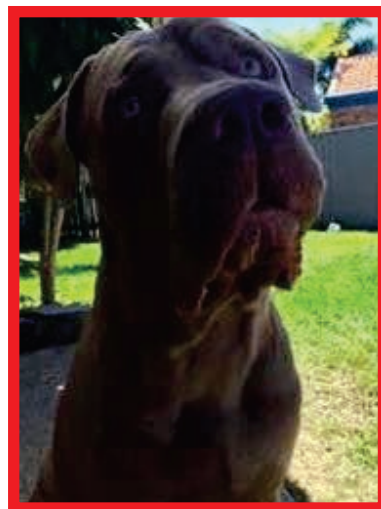

When learning of this, her change of heart came as a big shock to Hank's family given things had largely continued as normal, with them visiting Hank's home on a number of occasions, and no further incidents whatsoever. Hank's family had been forced to continually respond to a number of complaints from an unidentified person in the street that Council confirmed were unsubstantiated but still they never thought something more sinister was occurring in the background. Tensions increased in the street with the child's mother allegedly becoming confrontational towards Hank's family and other neighbours.

Despite the drama happening around them, Hank and his family were complying with the conditions and without incident. Council officers conducted a number of inspections and confirmed compliance each time, including in phone calls to them. No further incidents or complaints occurred.

"I based my recommendation [when investigating the original incident] on Community Safety and put measures in place that whilst Hank was in a public place he should be muzzled. I had no concerns in how Hank was being kept as Nathan and Tammy were very responsible pet owners and neighbours..."

Quote by original Investigating Officer from MBRC to spokesperson for Hank's family, 31 December 2017
But then, shockingly and without warning – reminiscent of double jeopardy – Council arrived at Hank's home in May 2017 without his family present and seized Hank, leaving behind paperwork for his owners to advise they were simultaneously seeking a destruction order for Hank. This was 7 months after the original accident!

Council advised Hank's family that their reason to seize Hank at that time was because his family had failed to comply with his desexing condition. Hank's family have always maintained that they recall being told by Council that the due date for that final compliance was due later than that date, and certainly not due by the date Hank was seized. Therefore, it is alleged that Hank was effectively seized based on misinformation of his desexing not being due yet. It is further alleged that combined with there being NO new evidence, NO further incidents and given the context of the original incident, a local council using merely a failure to desex Hank (which is an offence carrying merely a fine) and unfounded allegations of community risk is NOT justification to incarcerate him in cruel conditions for 9 months and NOT justification to pursue putting this much loved family dog with no prior history before or since, to death

ANXIOUS CHILD/FRUSTRATED PARENT

Hey Leonie,

I have a young girl who is twelve. She is a sad little girl and is always worrying. She worries about everything and even things from the past. She worries about making friends and doing OK at school. I don't think she is coping very well but most of what gets her frazzled is very little in terms of issues. Little things like worrying she has her tea towel for her Home Ec class and other little things like this are a big problem for her. Lately she has been worrying about teachers checking lunch boxes for the healthy food policy and won't even take her tiny teddies to school.

This is ridiculous as she always has a good lunch box packed with fruit and sandwiches and the school are really over stepping in my view. I have told her that I will deal with the school or any other problems that may come up, but she still frets.

She has seen the school counsellor who was no help and then went on leave. Her dad is an anxious person and so is his mother. Please help me to help my daughter. I am willing to learn what to do if I just knew what that is.

Frustrated Parent.

Hi Frustrated Parent,

The trouble with trying to counsel our own children is that we are often too close to the situation to be objective and our kids may see us as part of the problem. I would arrange for your daughter to get professional counselling ASAP and definitely before high school. Aside from her worrying, she is at an age where she will be dealing with many issues simultaneously, including puberty, harder academic performance expectations and social and biological issues. Your child is bringing up things from the past to re-worry over and this is very concerning to me as I feel that she is showing signs of an anxiety disorder.

Often this worrying about everything can morph into 'worrying about worrying' and create a circular nightmare that saps quality of life. This kind of anxiety can take the joy out of everyday life as there is always something to fear, to deal with or to dread. I would not wait one more moment before getting her tried and true strategies that she can call on wherever she may be. In the interim, I would encourage you to not let your daughter watch the news or hear stories of violence or other horror. Monitoring her internet use and blocking distressing stories and face book comments is important in my view. We should be doing this for all children but especially children with Anxiety.

The tendency to worry "furtherise and catastrophise" can be managed. There are many strategies that take the power out of this condition. I take my clients who have worry anxiety through a series of sessions based on understanding worry, what drives and feeds it and what their personal triggers may be. Understanding what triggers worrying and what maintains worrying can see the condition come under control in just a few sessions.

Cognitive rehearsal, challenging beliefs, looking at the "thinking and feeling connection" and accepting uncertainty can turn this nightmare around for a lot of people. The sooner you get your daughter help the sooner she can get started on the road to management and hopefully extinguishment of this condition.

Regardless of which qualified counsellor or therapist you choose I would urge to not wait too much longer to start addressing this very distressing condition. Life is hard at any age, but at the age of twelve, I feel that your daughter has some difficult developmental years ahead of her and that she would benefit greatly from support now rather than later.

Til next week, Leonie.

CALLING ALL QUEENSLANDERS

To an unmissable game of Queensland Great vs Queensland Great - A Night with Cameron Smith and JT

On February 23 there's a footy event that will make your maroon blood glow brightly, it's the clash of Queensland great against Queensland great, at a place where history is forged - it's the Cameron Smith and Johnathan Thurston Testimonial Match at Suncorp Stadium.

Players like Cameron Smith and Johnathan Thurston come along only once in a lifetime, and when they do, it's reason to gather. And gather we will when League legends Smith and Thurston will be recognised for their incredible contribution to Rugby League in a special testimonial match to be played ahead of the 2018 season.

Smith's Melbourne Storm will take on Thurston's North Queensland Cowboys at their beloved Suncorp Stadium next year. It will be the first time the teams have faced each other since the 2017 NRL Grand Final, in which Smith's Storm won 34-6 over a Cowboys side playing its second Grand Final in three years, after losing co-captain Thurston to a season-ending shoulder injury in Origin II.

It will also mark the start of Thurston's final year in the NRL. The match will provide fans with an opportunity to pay tribute to two living legends, and will also be a chance for both Smith and Thurston to thank the fans who have supported them throughout their careers, ahead of what is set to be a memorable season for both.

Proving they're legends off the field as well, Smith and Thurston have announced three charities as official partners for the event, they are the Cowboys Community Foundation supported 'NRL Cowboys House', Ovarian Cancer Australia and Prostate Cancer Foundation. Both players' dedication to Rugby League is matched only by their commitment to giving back to the community so they are thrilled to be able to support these charities with a portion of ticket sales being donated to all three.

So, if you know what it feels like to bleed maroon, and are proud to call Queensland home, then this is the one game you must witness in 2018.

Tickets are available via Ticketek.com.au or 132849. The match will also be broadcast (exclusively) on Fox Sports or you could ...

EVERY DAY COUNTS FOR SUCCESS AT SCHOOL IN 2018

Rugby league players Jonathon Thurston and Sam Thaiday know that Every Day Counts. So does Australian Under 21 representative and Queensland Firebird Beryl Friday.

That trio are just some of the sporting stars, who along with Education Minister Grace Grace are reminding parents and carers of Queensland's primary and high school students how important attending school every day is for their children's future.

"The best way to ensure our children reap the full benefit from their primary and high school years is to ensure they attend school every day," Ms Grace said.

"It's a simple message, but one that we know works.

"We know there is a clear link between school attendance and student performance.

"Each one per cent increase in student attendance may relate to up to three NAPLAN scale score points while missing just one day of school each fortnight amounts to missing more than a year of learning during the course of a student's school life.

Ms Grace said the Education Department's very successful Every Day Counts program highlights that improving school attendance is a responsibility shared by students, parents, carers, schools and the community.

"The Every Day Counts resources also help to encourage regular and consistent attendance for Indigenous students.

"Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students, in general, have had lower school attendance rates compared to their non-Indigenous peers so we've developed a range of targeted strategies to help close the gap.

"In 2017, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students' attendance was at 84.8 per cent while non-Indigenous students attended school at 92.2 per cent.

"In recent years the State Government has engaged some of Queensland's highest profile sports stars to help promote the Every Day Counts messages, including rugby league players Johnathan Thurston and Sam Thaiday, and netballer Beryl Friday.

"The campaign appeals to young Indigenous students with an animation featuring the adventures of Jimmy and his dog Sam (the voice of Sam Thaiday), a comic book, posters and a dedicated website.

"Just as every training session is important to Sam, JT and Beryl, every day at school is crucial to students," Ms Grace said.

"Until now it had been assumed that the flu could only be passed on when a person was exposed to droplets from an infected person's coughs or sneezes, or if we touched surfaces contaminated with the virus."

FLU MORE EASILY SPREAD THAN PREVIOUSLY THOUGHT

DR ANITA GREEN - BRISBANE NORTH PHN

When someone is unwell and they're coughing or sneezing, we typically move away—assuming that by doing so we'll reduce our risk of getting sick.

However, new research from the United States suggests the transmission of flu from one person to another maybe much easier than previously thought.

The study of an American college community revealed that the outward or exhaled breath of people who have the flu might be enough to infect others. In other words, it may be possible to give someone the flu by simply breathing on them.

Until now it had been assumed that the flu could only be passed on when a person was exposed to droplets from an infected person's coughs or sneezes, or if we touched surfaces contaminated with the virus.

Funded by the US Centre for Disease Control and Prevention and the National Institutes of Health, this study was undertaken by four notable American universities.

Professor Sheryl Ehrman, Dean of Engineering at San José State University said keeping surfaces clean, washing our hands all the time, and avoiding people who are coughing does not provide complete protection from getting the flu.

"Staying home and out of public spaces could make a difference in the spread of the influenza virus," Professor Ehrman said.

According to lead researcher Dr Donald Milton, a medical doctor and professor of environmental health at the University of Maryland, people with the flu "contaminated the air around them with infectious virus just by breathing, without coughing or sneezing."

"People with flu generate infectious aerosols (tiny droplets that stay suspended in the air for a long time) even when they are not coughing, and especially during the first days of illness," Dr Milton said.

"So when someone is coming down with influenza, they should go home and not remain in the workplace and infect others," he said.

The researchers believe their findings may lead to more effective public health interventions to control and reduce the impact of large-scale flu outbreaks, for example, by improving ventilation systems in offices and schools.

These research findings may also help to explain why Australia is currently experiencing the second year of unusually high rates of influenza during summer.

This trend has been reported by Flutracking.net—an online health surveillance system to detect epidemics of influenza—and a joint initiative of Newcastle University, Hunter New England Population Health and the Hunter Medical Research Institute.

Discussing this trend in one of their recent

Facebook posts, Flutracking.net said that the higher number of summer flu cases "may just be that we are doing more lab tests."

"However, we may be creating 'micro-winters' in our homes, shopping malls, and office buildings due to all pervasive air conditioning. Influenza virus loves low temperatures and low humidity."

"We may not need tourists to import influenza into Australia if we maintain micro-winter environments through summer."

According to the Australian Government Department of Health and Ageing, there were almost 250,000 laboratory confirmed notifications of influenza in Australia for 2017.

This included just under 56,000 cases in Queensland, close to twice the number of notifications reported the previous year.

Doctors can administer rapid influenza tests to obtain laboratory confirmation of influenza and may prescribe antiviral medicines, such as Tamiflu or Relenza, if a patient is considered at high risk of complications.

But prevention is always better than a cure, so remember to book in with your doctor for your annual flu jab as well.

Fueding family patriachs - what could go wrong?

Shari Sebbens (as Charlotte Gibson) is questioning her own and her family's success

Luke Carroll as the always present Narrator is brilliant

If art reflects life then it's no surprise that modern theatre is often inspired by modern conversations of privilege, identity and people of colour being over-represented in the margins. Optimistically, these are important topics currently under the institutional microscope but are most definitely in the viewfinder of modern art, theatre especially.

Some recent productions exploring these themes have had the effect of leaving you feeling bludgeoned by the message. By intent they're thought provoking but can ultimately leave you feeling like your fun night out was a lot of hard work in the brain department (not that that's a bad thing), rather than entertainment.

Nakkiah Liu's production Black is the New White, currently in show at QPAC's Playhouse, is not that. In fact, it's a rom-com. A very Australian, extraordinarily funny, pure entertainment experience.

Two families (one indigenous, one white) made up of four couples, are put together for a family Christmas. They're meeting for the first time but there's some shared history - the patriarchs of the families are political and personal arch-enemies.

What they have in common is a son and daughter in love. Lead Charlotte Gibson (Shari Sebbens) is a young and successful Aboriginal lawyer, questioning her own and her family's success. Her surprise fiancé, Francis Smith (Tom Stokes) is an unemployed trust fund kid. With both of their father's being long time political adversaries, and each character (except the ever-present narrator) holding a secret to be revealed, what could go wrong?

As family Christmases often do - a great deal. Old and new issues simmer, boil and explode. Not just for Charlotte, Francis and their feuding Fathers - there are tensions and shocking revelations throughout that threaten the couples involved and the families as wholes.

What should be said at this stage is that BITNW is hilarious. In fact it's the funniest play I've ever seen, probably the funniest Australian anything I've ever seen. Yes, it makes you think but the politics are inward looking not outward - more than anything, it makes you laugh. Topics of race, identity and privilege are investigated but mercilessly skewered. I left the theatre with split sides not a heavy heart.

While endlessly light hearted, it's not for the easily offended, there is brief full frontal nudity, mild drug use (marijuana), and minor sexual antics.

Black is the New White by Nakkiah Lui marks the start of Queensland Theatre's 2018 season and it sets a very high water mark for the diverse season ahead. If you're not a regular theatre goer but could use a night of laughter (and who doesn't) - make an exception for this one.

Black is the new white is playing QPAC's Playhouse until February 17, 2018. Tickets via queenslandtheatre.com.au or 1800 355 528

Hilarious. Faultless. Would make great television. Five stars.

YOUR STARS

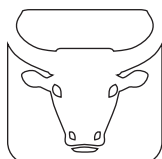

Aquarius Jan 21-Feb 19: Circumstances pit you against a colleague. Your first priority is to take care of the matter at hand. You can patch things up later.

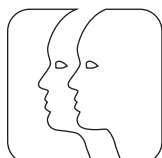

Pisces Feb 20-March 20: You've run pro and con scenarios so many times your head is spinning. Why not go right to the source? You'll ever know unless you ask.

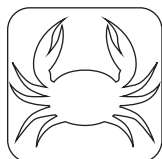

Aries March 21- April 20: You're not thrilled with all the iffy variables. But where there's a will, there's a way!

Taurus April 21- May 21: Don't focus so much on a result that you jeopardise other things at stake. There's a way to have it all. Discovering how is a sign of ingenuity.

Gemini May 22-June 21: Sometimes you can be provocative without meaning to be. A comment made in jest could create more trouble than it's worth. Button the lip.

Cancer June 22- July 23: You tried to make a situation work and it won't. This person can't transcend circumstances. Let go and make room for something better.

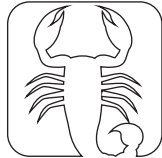

Leo July 24-Aug 23: It's hard to tell who you can trust these days. Everyone has an agenda. Since no ones being sincere, you might as well see which one furthers yours.

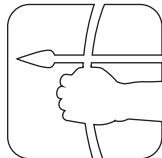

Virgo Aug 24-Sept 23: Today id the day to push for what you want- no ifs, ands, or buts. You'll get what you want.

Libra Sept 24-Oct 23: You astound and impress colleagues by playing against type. Consider letting this independent side out of you more often. People like it.

Scorpio Oct 24-Nov 22: Are you making a task more impossible than need be? Check in with friends. They have the inside scoop on the means to an end.

Sagittarius Nov 23-Dec 21: It's when people falter that you want to express confidence in them. Your can- do spirit is exactly what's needed to surmount a hurdle.

Capricorn Dec 22-Jan 20: Take the time to make sure facts are in order before you make your case. The other side acts casual, but things can deteriorate quickly.

One of the most original and mesmerising live performances on earth is headed for Brisbane. The Manganiyar Seduction is a visually and musically stunning masterpiece, where 40 musicians from three generations of Manganiyars perform in a 36-windowed 'jewel box', with the songs slowly building to giddy heights. Celebrating the music of the Manganiyars, a caste of desert musicians from the heart of the Thar Desert in Rajasthan, The Manganiyar Seduction will be performed twice at the Queensland Performing Arts Centre on March 1 and 2, 2018.

The Manganiyars are a caste of Muslim musicians who are predominantly settled in the districts of Jaisalmer, Barmer and Jodhpur, in the heart of the Thar Desert. INNER BRISBANE VACANCIES EASE, REST OF STATE TIGHTENS

Renters flocked to the middle ring, while supply in inner Brisbane exceeded demand, pushing the vacancy rate to 4 per cent, according to REIQ December quarter rental data

Inner Brisbane (0-5km ring) vacancies lifted from 3.7 per cent in September last year to 4 per cent in the December quarter, while the middle ring sharply tightened from 3.4 per cent to 2.1 per cent.

The vacancy rate of inner Brisbane has only reached 4 per cent or higher twice before – December 2013 when it reached 4.1 per cent and March 2017 when it peaked at 4.4 per cent, the highest level since records began in 2008.

REIQ CEO Antonia Mercorella said this news was disappointing for investors, but not unexpected.

"We knew vacancies in inner Brisbane would edge up for the duration of 2017 thanks to strong levels of apartment supply coming to the market.

"Approvals have fallen in the past six months and we know that this period – where supply exceeds demand – is likely to be only temporary thanks to a steadily growing population and consistent demand for inner city accommodation," she said.

"Just how temporary is difficult to predict but our expectation is that demand will start to catch up to supply very quickly and vacancy rates will return to the typically healthy levels this market usually achieves of around 2.5 – 3.5 per cent."

The middle ring (5-20km) is popular with the vacancy rate tightening from 3.4 per cent to 2.1 per cent in December 2017.

"This market has become very popular. It's affordable, in most suburbs there is the convenience of good infrastructure and public transport and tenants have a good range of options to suit many budgets," Ms Mercorella said.

The Outer Brisbane markets of Ipswich, Caboolture, Pine Rivers and Redland eased slightly but are still classed as healthy rental markets. Logan and Redcliffe tightened.

Queensland's southeast corner beach front markets of the Gold Coast, the Sunshine Coast, as well as the Fraser Coast, all tightened and are now among the tightest rental markets in the state.

"Caloundra and Maroochydore have vacancies of just 0.4 per cent, the lowest rate ever recorded, and this means that tenants are going to struggle significantly to get a rental property," Ms Mercorella said.

"Markets that remain consistently tight will eventually see upward pressure on rents," she said. "It's no surprise that the Gold Coast, which has officially been classed as a tight market for the better part of the past five years, is the most expensive place in Queensland to rent a three-bedroom house or a two-bedroom unit."

REGIONAL RECOVERY

2017 is the year of the regional recovery with a group of regional markets outside of southeast Queensland moving from the weak (in some cases very weak) range into healthy territory, or very close to healthy.

In early 2017, Toowoomba was the only regional rental market (excluding the Gold and Sunshine coasts and Cairns, which were all tight markets) to operate in the healthy range. By December 2017 the rental markets of Bundaberg and Mackay exited the weak range.

And even though Rockhampton and Townsville remain weak, they have made significant moves toward healthy status. Rockhampton vacancies were at 8.6 per cent in March 2017 but by December had improved considerably to reach 5 per cent. Townsville has shown similar improvements, tightening from 6.2 per cent in March 2017 to fall to 4.6 per cent in December.

"These rental markets were facing extremely difficult conditions however the improving broader economy, in particular the recovering coal price and strengthening employment figures, is having a positive impact on regional rental markets and this is good news," Ms Mercorella said.

Fraser Coast started 2017 in weak territory with 3.9 per cent but by December reached the lowest level all year with 1.6 per cent. This is the lowest level reached since June 2008 (when the REIQ commenced calculating its vacancies).

Cairns, which has been a consistent rental market performer in recent years, reached its lowest vacancy level of 1.6 per cent for only the second time.

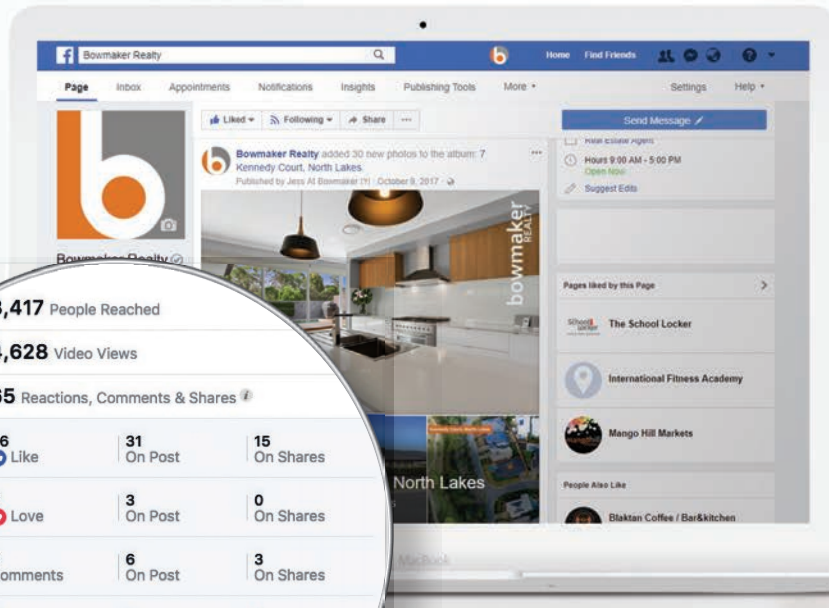

"As yesterday's Deloitte Access Economics report shows, Queensland's economic prospects are improving with Queensland the most popular destination for internal migration. Our population is steadily growing and people typically rent before they buy, testing out the area before they commit to a mortgage. We are confident that Queensland's rental markets will perform steadily throughout 2018," Ms Mercorella said.
